Recommend removing the requirement to have the certification notarized. We don't gain anything from this.

Response: The requirement of any producer to supply a notarized certification statement is consistent for all structures. Notarization guarantees a legally binding document attesting that all products delivered to the project meets all governing requirements. In addition, having the statement notarized provides the Contractor some assurance that all the products shipped to the project by the manufacturer are as per specifications.

No change made.
