

Search from Federal SAM Website

1. Access the Federal System for Award Management (SAM) website. A hyperlink is provided from the Office of Construction website, from the contractor suspension list.
<http://www.fdot.gov/construction/legal/NewSuspension.shtm>
2. From the main page, you can type in the contractor company name to see if they have an active exclusion in the SAM database. You can type in partial company name or the entire name. You will notice that the search will often provide a pick list to choose from similar names.

SEARCH

4. The default search option for a Quick Search is to only show companies with an active registration or active exclusion (i.e. debarment or suspension by the federal government). We are only interested in active exclusions. Since the company we typed in no longer has an active exclusion, no results were shown. If we select the inactive checkbox, previously active records will be displayed.

5. Click the View Details button to see the related information specific to an exclusion. This is important, as many exclusions are only “active” if the contract or subcontract is over a specific dollar amount (often $25 or $30k). This exclusion ended on the Termination Date shown (02/26/2017).
